

CONTRIBUTORS

Allan-Ross, Tania

Tania is a Principal Lecturer-Fashion within the School of Design, Otago Polytechnic. Tania's research and scholarship interests predominately allied with the design and development of inclusive products informed by user experiences, in particular therapeutic garments.

Barclay, Gary

Gary is a senior lecturer in sport, exercise and health-related psychology at Otago Polytechnic's Institute of Sport and Adventure. He completed a Masters in sport psychology at the University of Otago in 2004 and has since completed graduate studies in psychology through Massey University. In addition to his teaching, Gary has consulted with a variety of individuals and groups in sport and performing arts contexts.

Burkhart, Marc

Marc graduated with a Bachelor of Sport and Recreation at AUT in 2017.

Butler, Mary

Mary is a Principal Lecturer at the School of Occupational Therapy, Otago Polytechnic. Mary supervises Masters students.

Croft, Hayden

Hayden's expertise lies in a variety of areas all focused on advancing rugby coaching through the use of innovative technology, this has included work with the All Blacks, Highlanders, Otago Rugby, Oceania Rugby and Southern Steel Netball. He is currently working on his PhD and holds the chairperson role with the ISPAS Oceania.

Davis, Kerry

Kerry is a Lecturer in the School of Nursing at Otago Polytechnic. Until recently she was the Clinical Nurse Educator at Mercy Hospital, Dunedin, where she collaborated with Geoffrey Harvey on this project. Kerry's interests include Preceptorship, nurse migration and the experience of International Qualified Nurses (IQNs) in this country. Kerry believes that active collaboration between industry and academic partners is the key to an enhanced experience for both migrant nurses and the communities that they serve.

Gibbons, Megan

Megan is the Head of college at Te Ohu Ora, which includes the Institute of Sport and Adventure and the School of Occupational Therapy at Otago Polytechnic. She has a PhD from Auckland University. Megan's research interests include workplace health and wellness, and paediatric and micronutrient nutrition. Recently she has become interested in understanding the learner in the tertiary setting and how teachers can best meet their needs and expectations.

Harvey, Geoffrey

Geoffrey has a background of 25 years in acute care nursing. Most of this time has been spent in critical care. He is a Certified Emergency Nurse who is passionate about developing nurse learners within this challenging area. Geoffrey has extensive international experience, holding registration in four different countries. He has completed a master's degree through the University of Newcastle and is currently working towards a Master of Professional Practice.

Humphrey, Richard

Richard began his academic career at the University of Southampton (UK), where he taught sport studies and sport management and development. Following postgraduate study at the University of Bristol, he took up a lecturing position at Otago Polytechnic. Richard teaches and supervises undergraduate and postgraduate research in the fields of exercise, health and research methods. His research interests include the therapeutic use of exercise and substance misuse.

Irvine, Nicole

Nicole graduated with a Bachelor of Applied Science at Otago Polytechnic's Institute of Sport & Adventure in 2017. She currently works as a Green Prescription Coordinator for Sport Otago.

Jones, Bennett

Bennett graduated with a Bachelor of Applied Science at Otago Polytechnic's Institute of Sport & Adventure in 2017. He is currently studying for a Postgraduate Diploma in Applied Science, specialising in Physical Conditioning.

Korhonen, Marco

Marco is a researcher and educator at the University of Jyväskylä, Finland. He has published over 41 articles with a focus on Rehabilitation, Exercise Science and Biomechanics. His research has included master's athletes, sprinting and the bone health of masters athletes. Currently he is working as a researcher in the Faculty of Sport and Health Sciences at the University of Jyväskylä.

Macgregor, Campbell

Campbell gained his Master's degree in Human Movement Science at Central Queensland University and is now progressing to gain his PhD. His research for his PhD is in the bone health of male master's athletes undertaking different modes of training. Campbell is a Certified Clinical Densitometrist (CCD) and an accredited exercise physiologist with Exercise and Sports Science Australia. Campbell is currently a senior academic staff member at Toi Ohomai Institute of Technology in New Zealand.

Mahoney Laurie

Laurie is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Nursing and a Public Health Nurse with the Southern District Health Board. She is highly involved in community development projects, supervising 3 Year student nurses and the impact assessment resources developed by the students has on improving health outcomes.

Malthaus, Jane

Jane is a dress and textiles historian and curator, who teaches at Otago Polytechnic and University of Otago. She researches historical, social and cultural intersections and implications of dress and textiles worn and used by nineteenth and twentieth century New Zealanders using multidisciplinary approaches, and curates and writes about exhibitions of fashion and dress.

Middlemas, Simon

Simon is a Principal Lecturer and Research Coordinator at the Otago Institute of Sport and Adventure at Otago Polytechnic. He completed a PhD in sport psychology in 2014 and has worked as a Sport Psychology Consultant with clients such as GB Swimming, GB Volleyball, England Netball, and the English Football Association.

Reaburn, Peter

Peter is a highly-respected educator who won the CQ University Vice-Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Learning and Teaching in 2012 as well as a national teaching award (Office of Learning and Teaching Citation) in 2013. Previously he was Head of CQ University's Department of Health and Human Performance for seven years and then the only academic seconded into a major university auditing project (Australian Universities Quality Agency) for two years. Peter has a Doctor of Philosophy, University of Queensland. Peter is Professor and Head of Exercise & Sports Science within the Faculty of Health Science and Medicine at Bond University, Australia.

Ritchie, Lorraine

Lorraine is a Nurse Consultant (policy, Practice and Projects) at the Southern District Health Board. She has worked in the area of gerontology and aged care for many years and is also very interested in the intersection of arts and health and the application of this to health professional education.

Robertson, Sam

Sam currently holds a joint appointment as the Victoria University-Western Bulldogs Head of Research & Innovation. He oversees the sports science partnership between the University and Western Bulldogs. He completed his PhD at Edith Cowan University in skill acquisition & talent identification as part of his role in Research and Innovation with the Golf Australia High Performance program. Prior to commencing at VU, Sam also held an ongoing position as the Lecturer in Biomechanics at Deakin University. Sam's research interests include Performance Analytics & Technology / Talent Selection, Development & Coaching Practice themes in Australian football and golf.

Robinson, Rita

Rita is a Principal Lecturer for Otago Polytechnic Occupational Therapy undergraduate and post graduate programs. She has a strong interest in childhood studies, co-occupation between parents and children, and school-based practice.

Ross, Jean

Jean is a Principal Lecturer and has been working at Otago Polytechnic since 2003. She is a Registered Nurse, holds a BN and a Master of Arts, and completed her Doctorate in 2017. From 1994-2003, she was co-director of the National Centre for Rural Health and instrumental in the development of interdisciplinary postgraduate nursing education. In 2008, she received the Rural General Practice Network Peter Snow Memorial Award in recognition of her national contribution to rural health care. She is highly involved in community development projects, supervising 3 Year student nurses and the impact assessment resources developed by the students has on improving health outcomes.

Smart, Ryan

Ryan graduated with a Bachelor of Sport and Recreation at AUT in 2016. He is currently working as a performance analyst in football.

Spencer, Kirsten

Kirsten is a Senior Lecturer in coaching at Auckland Institute of Technology. Her teaching areas include sports coaching and notational analysis, athlete-centred coaching, SportsCode Elite and Focus notational analysis, and athlete movement and tactical analysis. She completed her BEd (Hons) at Manchester Metropolitan University, and a MSc and PhD (sport and exercise science) at Essex University. Her research interests include coaching behaviours and performance analysis.

Sunderland, James

James is a senior lecturer at the Otago Polytechnic School of Occupational Therapy. He teaches across all three years of the undergraduate degree, facilitating courses that examine human occupation and promote occupation-based practice. His previous practice was in the field of traumatic brain injury. He completed an ethnographic study of the Men's Shed movement for his master's thesis and has research interests in occupation-based practice and the use of digital technology in practice.

Taylforth, Jessica

Jessica graduated with a Bachelor of Applied Science at Otago Polytechnic's Institute of Sport & Adventure in 2017.

Vera, Anton

Anton graduated with a Bachelor of Sport and Recreation at AUT in 2017. He is currently working as a coach in football.

White, Moira

Moira is Curator, Humanities at the Otago Museum, Dunedin. Her principal research areas involve the material culture collections of museums. Recent and current projects include 19th century New Zealand ceramics, missionaries working in Melanesia, New Zealand women authors, and consideration of the social networks associated with museum donations.